

Get a Real "Taste" of the Mission Field

In the Spring of 2010, RHEMA will host three different short-term mission trips. The goal and purpose of these trips is to introduce you to, and give you a real "taste" of the mission field, while being a blessing to RHEMA missionaries. These trips are not set up as tourist or sight-seeing vacations, but rather as opportunities to experience the reality of mission work both in the United States and abroad.

The home mission trip will offer on-the-field observation, ministry opportunities, and instruction by RHEMA graduates and Native Americans. Because the Indian Reservations are "nations within a nation", this trip provides a unique opportunity to experience a different culture without traveling outside of the U.S.

The two overseas trips will expose the participants to the unique requirements of ministering on foreign soil, crossing cultural and language barriers, and seeing first-hand what it takes to establish and maintain an effective ministry outside the U.S.

Each trip is unique and worthwhile. We encourage you to prayerfully consider what the Lord would have you do - then join the team and do it! Short-term mission trips are life changing opportunities – just ask anyone who's done it.

Trip information and reservation forms are available at window #1 in the Admissions Office beginning Friday, October 16, 2009.
